Finding Time... in a Garden

By Kathy Lamb

Bedding springs to life on the Quilt Gardens Tour at (top) Elkhart County 4-H Fairgrounds and (left) at the Old Bag Factory, Goshen. The Warsaw Biblical Gardens brings the Holy Lands to Indiana.

When the kids were little, our “gardening” consisted of keeping the grass cut and pulling weeds out of the perennial bed that – thankfully – added color to the landscaping each year with little effort on our part. But now that the kids are grown and gone from the nest, Rich and I are finding more time for real gardening, a little traveling and each other.

While we’re attempting to paint our thumbs green, we’re gaining a great sense of awe and respect for those who plan, plant and tend to living things. A little jaunt to northern Indiana turned into a pilgrimage of sorts for us...a pilgrimage inspiring us to redirect our time and energy toward our own nurturing of the land.

The self-guided walking tour of the Warsaw Biblical Gardens was the perfect place to start. This 3/4-acre garden, situated on a lovely spot on the edge of Center Lake, is like a trip back in time and around the globe. The 100-plus plants in the garden are referenced in the Old and New Testaments of the Bible, thus giving the name to this community project. The volunteer gardeners and docents are testimony to what can happen when a community comes together for the common good.

The grape arbor was especially beautiful. We learned it is a replica of an arbor in New York’s Central Park. In fact, the same gardener who built the Central Park arbor built the one for these Biblical Gardens. Jellies from the grapes and other fruits – quince and pomegranate – are available for sale in season. We also had the fortune of happening upon a volunteer tour guide who had gathered some seeds, which she graciously gave away. Those seeds found a special place in a pot at home, getting ready for our new garden.

The changing landscape of the gardens includes six distinct areas: forest, brook, meadow, desert, orchard, and crop and herb. It really felt as if we were traipsing through the Holy Lands as the flora changed with each theme. Reading the Bible passages provided on the tour brochure made all the plants especially meaningful and gave us some wonderful ideas.

Just north of Warsaw is Nappanee where we had reservations at the The Homespun Country Inn, one of a number of bed and breakfasts in the area. Turns out it was a perfect choice for our garden tour, given the freshly cut flowers in vases, floral wallpapers and many windows looking out on the beautiful yard. Relaxing on the swing hanging from a tree branch that evening, we pondered where we'd use the tiller first in our own yard.

After a delicious breakfast, we took the self-guided Quilt Gardens Tour of Amish Country's seven communities. It included 34 distinct designs – 17 gardens and 17 murals – that were juried and accepted by a committee of master gardeners, horticulturalists and professional landscapers. And all of the flowers used in the designs were grown locally.

There is truly nothing like this gardens tour in the country. Most of the gardens are along the 90-mile Heritage Trail that winds its way through Amish Country. We were glad we picked up the audio tour CD at the Elkhart County Visitors Center to learn the history and culture of the area as we drove. To learn more about each garden or mural on the trail, we simply called the number posted at each site to hear the story. In Elkhart, the Friendship Circle garden in the city park showcases the city employees' passion for their community.

At Das Dutchman Essenhaus in Middlebury, the Modified Weathervane Garden was tended by a professional landscaper, who happens to be married to a quilter – what a perfect combination for a beautiful design. Inside Essenhaus, we enjoyed a delicious Amish family-style meal of broasted chicken, made-from-scratch noodles, bread with apple butter and more. For dessert, we had our choice of 30 different pies. I had the Red Raspberry cream and Rich had the Dutch Apple. Scrumptious! Then, we browsed The Village Shops: Dutch Country Gifts, The Cabin, The ClothesLine and The Quilt Shop. With all the beautiful quilt gardens seen thus far, I had to have a hand-made quilt to remember the experience. Essenhaus also offers cozy-comfort rooms and several outdoor recreational activities - bicycle rental, carriage rides and miniature golf. Before heading on to our next destination, we took a relaxing carriage ride through the countryside - How beautiful.

With our brains full of ideas and camera full of colorful images, we headed west to Chesterton's European Market. The city holds this impressive event each Saturday from May through October in Thomas Centennial Park. The park is transformed into a European market with a delightful assortment of spices, creamery cheeses, pastries, wares and – of course – plants! We met vendors, perused hundreds of items and enjoyed the live jazz music. Rich found a couple of treasures in a section of rare books, which he says he'll read in the evening in our new garden.

With the renewed energy and enthusiasm I feel after this trip, I believe our garden will indeed become a reality.

GOOD FRIENDS, GOOD FOOD, GOOD GRIEF WHERE DID THE EVENING GO?

Have you ever had one of those moments where you had to snap yourself back to reality? You were so caught up in the moment that you really and truly forgot about all the things waiting for you to tackle at the office or at home? That total escape is the type of experience our crowd looks for when we get together. And it's what we've found in some one-of-a-kind, far-from-chain restaurants in eastern Indiana. By Amy Richards

HERE WE ARE, 10 YEARS OUT OF COLLEGE WITH TWO KIDS AND A MORTGAGE. Still, we cherish those memories with our old tailgating friends and do our best to still get together with them. It takes a little more planning than in those days when we could just pick up and go, but it's sure worth the effort. Our secret? Ask around to find the favorite spot of the locals in each town, because it's their favorite for a reason.

That trick worked for us in the tiny town of Perkinsville (population less than 500!), near Anderson, where we found BONGE'S TAVERN, a paradoxically upscale and ultra-casual gathering place. People travel from miles around for this experience...and "experience" is no exaggeration!

What's on tonight's menu? Well, you can never go wrong with Bonge's signature Perkinsville Pork. Take a look at the giant chalkboard, which changes daily with specials and Bonge's favorites such as applewood smoked prime rib, elk with shiitake, bacon-wrapped cheese steaks with crab sauce, stuffed duck or walleye. There's a separate chalkboard listing the day's wine specials.

And no worries if there's a wait for a table. The Bonge's tradition is to tailgate in the parking lot while you wait. Now, that's gourmet that's definitely not uppity. And it's a place where we can laugh heartily, eat as slowly as we want, and forget for a few hours that there's a real world waiting for us.

Another spot that welcomes guests as if they were old friends is MAD ANTHONY BREWING COMPANY in Fort Wayne. It's owned by three friends who've created an atmosphere that makes everyone feel like it's "my place." Plan to go at least twice, because Mad Anthony is really two unique experiences in one. Our first time there, we chose the Munchie Emporium Restaurant, a fun 68-seat restaurant that was originally a grocery store. You sit among an eclectic assortment of knick-knacks, old signs and 60's memorabilia as you munch on deep-dish Chicago-style pizza, vegetarian selections or a variety of other lite or full meals.

Our second time, we let loose and chose The Brewery Room, Mad Anthony's newest addition and the best place to get the full effect of the award-winning ales and lagers. This 19-table room has a great view of the brew house, where you can watch Brewmaster Todd Grantham create his latest beer. They told us The Brewery Room lived previous lives as a drugstore, furniture store and a deli – that history makes the building itself feel like an old friend. After dinner we bellied up to the 20-foot-long bar and enjoyed the live music.

I WISHED I HAD A CAMERA WITH ME
BECAUSE THE DESSERTS WERE AS BEAUTIFUL AS THEY WERE DELICIOUS!

Now, as much as we like catching up with our old friends, sometimes my husband and I need to do a little escaping for just the two of us. Someplace where the lights are dim, quiet jazz plays and we can linger over our meal for a couple of hours. That's what we discovered in Richmond when we happened upon GHYSLAIN RICHMOND BISTRO, open for dinner Friday and Saturday and lunch Tuesday-Saturday.

I was glad we came hungry for this relaxing meal, because Ghyslain's specialty is dessert and French pressed coffees. My husband always laughs at me for checking out the dessert menu first. But my philosophy is that you should see if there's something worth saving room for before you choose your entrée. And the answer at Ghyslain is a definite "yes!"

The chocolates and freshly baked pastries go on for pages, but the house favorites are Charlemagne, a chocolate genoise cake topped with dark chocolate mousse infused with praline flavor and orange syrup; crème brulee, a smooth custard baked with Madagascar vanilla beans; chocolate caramel cup, layers of three types of chocolate and French butter cream caramel; and shacher, a combination of fresh raspberry puree and dark chocolate mousse layered on raspberry-infused chocolate genoise. I wished I had a camera with me because the desserts were as beautiful as they were delicious!

Of course, there must be wine and main course before the unbelievable desserts, and Ghyslain does not disappoint. Menus change every couple of months to include temptations such as Mongolian lamb, pesto linguine, striped bass or morel chicken. An extensive wine and beer list make for an even more memorable evening.

Once on an overnight trip, we decided to make lunch the special meal of the day. We were so happy the locals in Marion steered us toward the historic WILSON-VAUGHAN HOSTESS HOUSE. The 24-room mansion has been a favorite lunch spot since 1987 and has been owned by the same women's group since 1950. Four rooms on the main floor seat 120 people, where you can enjoy daily specials as well as favorite salads, soups and sandwiches.

After enjoying our delicious meal, we wandered upstairs and took a self-guided tour of the late 1800s, Greek Revival house. We learned it was built for $1 million in today's dollars for J. Wood Wilson, the president of the Marion Paper Company and the Marion National Bank. Beautifully restored, it is now listed on the National Historic Register. There is even a gift and consignment shop, where I found a few wonderful handmade items to take home.

The more we saw of the house, our minds began to fill with ideas for coming back to this welcoming place. What a beautiful setting in a few years for a private party...maybe our 25th anniversary?

BIG GIRLS DON'T CRY...

not when they have a fun getaway like this

BY ELIZABETH SCOTT

My friend Janice and I don't talk on the phone much. Seems we've resorted to email communication, which sometimes leads to confusion. Here's one of my favorite exchanges:

	janice: March 19, 8:15 p.m.	I'm planning a getaway for us girls. Broadway tix, facial and massage (or pedicure for you – I know that's what you like) and shopping. I was thinking bed and breakfast but haven't gotten that far yet. Depends on how many of us go. Probably two nights. You in?
	elizabeth: March 20, 3:48 p.m.	Of course I wanna go. Not sure I can swing NY this year, tho, with Joe leaving for college in a year. Maybe in 6 yrs when both kids are done with school. ☹
	janice: March 22, 6:05 p.m.	LOL no, not NY – Indy! ☺ It's all on Mass Ave. My sisters and I went there for an afternoon this summer and I've been wanting us girls to go for a weekend ever since.
	elizabeth: March 22, 9:19 p.m.	I'm in!!!! Let me know how I can help.

And so began our adventure on Massachusetts Avenue, better known as Mass Ave. We ended up with five of us meeting from different parts of Indiana. No more than an hour and a half away for any of us, but it felt like we were 1,000 miles away. (Well, except for at the beginning when Mary forgot to turn off her cell phone – our pact for all but two hours each day.)

This weekend calls for chocolate. Truffles from The Best Chocolate in Town, Indianapolis.

We went on a Thursday, figuring our husbands could handle things until our return Saturday night. Then we'd have Sunday left to get things back in order for Monday's routine. Thursday we browsed the shops on Mass Ave. I bought some great handmade jewelry at Silver in the City for my daughter, and for my friend – the one who is so hard to buy for – I found a sushi /sake set in her favorite colors. What fun to find such modern, eclectic wares in a historic district setting! We lost track of time in Arts A Poppin', which is surprising given all the artsy clocks for sale. Sandy and Janice went on to another fun boutique, Eye Candy, while Mary and I were caught up in the funny magnets that seemed to know our lives!

We wandered in and out of art galleries that showcased local and regional talent. Mass Ave is a gallery in and of itself with artwork on display along the corridor. I'll admit it...we had to stop and mimic the moves of the dancing lady light display.

The old and new really come together inside Stout's Shoes. Locally owned and operated for 120 years, Stout's offers all kinds of styles of shoes. And there's a bonus to buying shoes there – the cashier sends the shoes up the oldest-working shoe elevator to be wrapped in brown paper for the trip home.

At the northeast end of the street, we happened upon The Best Chocolate in Town. These tempting chocolate creations are for daring palettes and worth every bite: cinnamon basil, fiery pepper, Asian spice and Jack Daniel's barbecue. They also have traditional turtles, dipped pretzels, toffee and DaVinci Gelato.

Our Thursday activities continued with dinner at Mesh on Mass. We started out with the $2 bar menu, but made our way to a secluded table and enjoyed great atmosphere with a wonderfully casual, yet contemporary meal. We even got a change of scenery without even leaving the restaurant by moving to the open-air couches by the back fireplace to catch up on each other's family lives. Tomorrow night would be our big night out when we would see Jersey Boys at the Murat Centre, so we took advantage of The Chatterbox's late hours as we lingered and visited with each other.

We stayed in the heart of downtown at the Crowne Plaza at Historic Union Station, putting us within walking distance of Indianapolis' historic downtown, White River State Park and, of course, Circle Centre mall. We knew we'd have no trouble spending the whole day at Circle Centre! We began our day with breakfast close by at Café Patachou – love the local restaurants! For my omelette, I picked The Hippy with a Benz full of spinach, tomato, mushroom and feta – yum! I also stole a bite of Jeanine's Croissant French Toast Patachou. Our breakfast gave us the gusto we needed to hit Nordstrom, Carson Pirie Scott and all the specialty stores awaiting us at Circle Centre.

Dinner Friday night was quicker and lighter – we shared a Garden pizza at Bazbeaux, just a block from the Murat Centre – this gave us plenty of time to get ready for Jersey Boys. What fun memories the show brought back of all the old Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons songs. If four blue-collar boys can make it big, we can do anything, right? I love it when musical theater leaves you smiling and wanting more. And yes, we were harmonizing Big Girls Don't Cry on the walk back to the hotel. Can't wait to see what Broadway Across America brings next year!

On Saturday, we pampered ourselves at Complexions Spa, Salon and Boutique. They recommended a detailed skin analysis and consultation before beginning, and I enjoyed the personal touch. While I usually just stick with one service, I decided to try a package instead. The reasonably priced package lasted two hours (now that's good-value luxury!) and included a mini-massage, basic facial, pedicure and paraffin dip. Janice was right – I much prefer a pedicure over a manicure. Fingernails are too high-maintenance for me!

Our getaway to Indy, however, was not high maintenance. Easy to get around, easy on our wallets and easy to want to do again next year!

NEW-FANGLED, YET
FAMILY

F U N

By Angela Hudson

Lizzie's

of our vacation was watching a calf be born – in real life – at Fair Oaks Farms. Jason loved that he was finally big enough to ride the fastest and tallest roller coaster at Indiana Beach. And little Hunter? Well, he was proud to be the leader as we crossed the water on the slippery rocks at McCormick's Creek State Park.

My husband, Rob, says his favorite part of our summer vacation was how little gas it took. But when we pushed him for a real answer, he said it was telling ghost stories around the campfire at McCormick's Creek State Park. As for me, my favorite memory is that I created for my kids the same kind of family vacation I enjoyed as a child: the kind where you pack up the minivan, travel from place to place and experience new things.

We started at McCormick's Creek State Park just outside Spencer, where we pitched our tent and roughed it our first two nights. Beanie weenies taste best when cooked over an open fire, and the kids were a delightfully sticky mess after stuffing their faces with s'mores. There's nothing like sleeping outside being lulled by nature's symphony.

Hiking the ravine trails, the kids got an up-close look at that famous Indiana limestone stretching straight up to the sky and marveled at the area's beautiful waterfalls. They even got a little wet! As we were pretending to be early pioneers making our way west, Jason (the competitor) turned it into a game of who could be the quietest so the "natives" couldn't hear us coming. Two-year-old Hunter always has trouble with the "Quiet Game"! Rob showed off his skills at skipping rocks across the creek, duly impressing the kids. A refreshing dip in the pool was the perfect capstone to a long day of hiking.

he next day, Rob took the two older kids on their first horseback ride. Lizzie turned seven in April, so she just made the cut-off for minimum age. They came back with tales of friendly horses, a nice tour guide and the names of trees they didn't know before. While they rode horses, Hunter and I enjoyed the Reptile Romp, a guided tour through the woods led by a park interpretive naturalist.

After striking camp the next morning, we headed west to Terre Haute. In contrast to our outdoor accommodations, we decided to stay indoors at a downtown hotel. We settled in and then drove a couple miles to Fairbanks Park, where we enjoyed a trip down and back up the Wabash River thanks to Joe's Airboats. What a neat combination of nature and noise!

You can't miss the 26,000-square-foot Terre Haute Children's Museum in the heart of downtown. Its glass exterior and colorful banners invite passersby into the fun and learning inside. Well, the look on Hunter's face was priceless when he beheld the two-story tree leading up to the second-floor tree house. He quickly clambered up to the science play stations above. Believe me, Lizzie and Jason weren't far behind. We all had fun donning raincoats and creating dams in the wet lab. The third-floor agriculture experience gave us a hands-on glimpse of how food goes from field to table.

With camping and a museum checked off our list, we pointed the minivan northeast toward Monticello, where we spent two days at Indiana Beach Amusement Park on Lake Shafer. Indiana

Beach offers a lot of choices for overnight stays, from camping and cabins (bring your own linens) to hotels with maid service. We picked the Ideal Beach Suites, situated right next to the amusement park. The kids thought it was fun to hear the noises of the park and check out the view of the lake from our room.

I can tell already that we'll have to hit this amusement park at least once a summer from now on...the kids loved Indiana Beach! Jason and Rob rode the Steel Hawg at least five times – it's the first custom steel roller coaster in Indiana. Lizzie, Hunter and I spent more of our time in the kiddie ride area, but there were also lots of rides we could enjoy as a family.

What's great about Indiana Beach is that it's so many different kinds of fun together. We spent half a day in the water park, which has six of the fastest and wildest water slides in the Midwest. The Big Flush water coaster is as fun as its name is funny. What makes it better than a lot of water parks is the sand beach. Hunter had never seen that much sand in one place before. Lizzie is sure she wants to star in the water thrill show when she grows up – I guess we need to teach her how to water ski! To cap off the last night at Indiana Beach, we cruised Lake Shafer aboard the Shafer Queen, Indiana's largest boat operated by a paddle wheel.

With one more stop left to go, the kids couldn't imagine what else we had in store for them. They were sure surprised when we pulled into Fair Oaks Farms. This wasn't like any of the farms they'd experienced before. One of the largest dairy farms in the country, this 17,000-acre farm is home to 30,000 dairy cows. That many cows translate into 80 calves born and 300,000 gallons of milk pumped daily. The family-owned farm is committed to environmentally sound practices, raising its own feed for the cows and never treating them with hormones or antibiotics. They bottle their own milk and also make ice cream and award-winning cheeses on-site.

We started the day's adventure with the 45-minute bus tour of a milking barn. Seeing how 3,000 cows are milked really gave us an even greater appreciation for all those gallons of milk we go through at home. But the highlight of our day was the birthing barn, where we watched from the comfort of a glass observation area as a cow delivered her calf before our eyes.

Lunch in the Fair Oaks Farms Café was a treat. I opted for a classic grilled cheese sandwich with havarti pepper cheese, one of 22 varieties made in the Fair Oaks Cheese Factory.

We saved room for dessert so we could enjoy their homemade ice cream. The Brown Cow Sundae was an obvious choice, a delicious concoction of brownies, ice cream and toppings in a waffle bowl. The café is located at the cheese factory, where we learned how they make cheese and bought some to take home with us.

Listening to the chatter in the backseat on our drive home, I mentally patted myself on the back for giving my kids wonderful family memories like I have of my childhood vacations.

The Art of ENTERTAINING GRANDDAUGHTERS

By Daniel Taylor

It's official. I'm "the bomb"! My granddaughter said so on the phone to her mom, and I overheard it. How did I earn such stature? Their Nana and I took her and her sister to some of our favorite places as we meandered our way through south central Indiana, that's how!

Our granddaughters flew in for the first time by themselves – they seemed so grown-up when we picked them up at the airport that early Saturday morning. My wife was nervous about making their stay the best it could be, but I knew her careful planning would pay off.

After their flight and the car trip home, they were ready to expend some energy, that's for sure. So we dropped their bags off at our home in Bloomington and then headed straight to the B-Line Trail. Just opened in 2009, this former rail corridor is now a great place for walking, riding and biking. The girls happily skipped and walked along the three-mile trail. You should've seen their faces when we got to the end and they encountered the giant "Bloomington Banquet" – it's a 23-foot-high table and chairs made of Indiana limestone and topped off by place settings made of steel and aluminum.

Walking right under that table and chairs is the perfect way to head toward the entrance of the Bloomington Community Farmers' Market. The girls were lured in by the smell of one vendor's freshly baked bread, and they picked out some annuals to help Nana plant in our yard. They enjoyed talking to the locals about how they grew the produce they were selling, especially the folks from Oliver Winery. They were so intrigued by the grape-growing process used by this Indiana Artisan that we decided to picnic on the nearby Oliver Winery grounds and let the girls learn more about their processes.

"What are we doing next?" the girls eagerly asked. Guess they knew Pops and Nana had lots of plans up our sleeves for their week-long visit! We told them we'd be taking a journey through their mom's old neck of the woods – a journey that would include stops along the artisan trail that winds along Highway 46 from our hometown through Nashville and on to Columbus.

So later that week we headed for Nashville. The girls reminded us so much of their mom as they popped in and out of the gift shops and galleries. Their favorite stops were those where we could chat with the artists about their work. Big sis couldn't go home without a pair of metal earrings by Indiana Artisan Amy Greely, especially after she chatted with her about how she gets her inspiration for unique metal jewelry designs. One of our favorite visits was at Homestead Weaving Studio on our way to Columbus. On her 21 looms, Indiana Artisan Chris Gustin weaves rugs and wearable items from fabric-industry scraps and even plastic bags, making her art not just beautiful and functional but also eco-friendly! The girls each had a chance at the loom and took home the "mug rug" they made while we visited the studio.

Visitors can meet the artists and buy their handiwork in the Brown County studios of Indiana Artisans Amy Greely (opposite) and Chris Gustin (below left). Bloomington's Oliver Winery is a perfect spot for picnics and tours.

In Columbus we decided to meander through town to see the amazing architecture on our own. It's so easy now that the Columbus Visitors Center offers a call-in service where you get descriptions of the sites right on your cell phone. We just put it on speaker phone so we could all hear the descriptions. It's no wonder Columbus was named among the best historic destinations in the world – #11 in National Geographic Traveler magazine's listing of the 109 top destinations and it's a Top 10 U.S. City for Architectural Design.

When we got the map and phone-in instructions at the Visitors Center, the girls also picked out some of local artisan Alexa Lemley's delicious marshmallows. This Indiana Artisan uses organic ingredients and plenty of imagination as she concocts flavors like Strawberry Shake, Café au Lait or Sweet and Salty Caramel. I like mine with just the sugar dusting, but I noticed the girls picked the ones dipped in Guittard chocolate!

We stayed over in Columbus so our granddaughters could experience the new Hotel Indigo – they felt like they were starring in a movie! From the moment we stepped into the lobby and were greeted by the friendly hotel dog, we knew we were in for a treat. The contemporary furnishings, including a living wall of ivy in the lobby and a unique wall mural in our guestroom, put us right in the midst of the world-class architecture we'd toured that day.

Our next destination was historic Madison, where we hiked up the Heritage Trail for an excellent view of the Ohio River. Our city-dwelling granddaughters couldn't believe how far they could see and in so many directions. Most of our Madison visit focused on the past – after all, the 133 blocks that make up Madison's Historic District is a National Historic Landmark. The girls giggled when they saw the skeleton in the closet at Dr. William Hutchings' office and hospital, preserved with the furnishings and equipment he used in the late 1800s. On Main Street we stopped at Mudcat Pottery, where we watched Indiana Artisan Darlene Yarnetsky at work on her potter's wheel. Little sis picked out a lidded jar for storing her hair things. Then we headed to Cocoa Safari, where the smells alone of the homemade chocolates nearly sent us into orbit! (Did I mention I like sweets?)

That evening we took the Sundown in the Graveyard tour. Our tour guide, dressed in turn-of-the-century clothing, taught us all about gravestone carvings and old customs.

The girls enjoyed carrying their own lanterns and were inspired to do some storytelling of their own before we went to bed that night at Clifty Inn at Clifty Falls State Park. The girls also enjoyed swimming and playing board games in the homey lodge inside the state park.

For the last leg of our trip, we followed the By Hoosier Hands Trail to nearby Vevay. This little town, ranked 4th-coolest small town in America according to Budget Travel magazine, is up and coming on the art scene. The Mercantile of Switzerland County, a great historic building filled with arts, crafts and antiques, was the perfect end to our artistic tour. Luckily, it was the first Friday of the month, so we were treated to live music on homemade dulcimers while we shopped. We felt like we were in an old general store as we browsed the antiques and foods. As we left, our bags were filled with Amish cheeses and award-winning honey.

After we arrived home, I overheard the girls talking to their folks on the phone – okay, maybe I was eavesdropping. But it was worth the slight amount of guilt as I heard them say, “We want to come back here every summer!”

Editor's Note: The artists mentioned in this story have had their work juried into the Indiana Artisan program, a collection of Indiana's talented artists and value-added food producers. Look for the Indiana Artisan logo in shop windows. Learn more about the program at IndianaArtisan.org.

AUNTS, UNCLES AND TURKEY VULTURES

By David Stewart

Patoka Lake Marina, Birdseye;
Fishing near Hoosier Hills
Marina, Celestine.

FEEL LIKE YOU ONLY SEE YOUR RELATIVES WHEN THEY'RE AROUND A TABLE FOR A MEAL OR CRAMMED INTO YOUR AUNT'S FAMILY ROOM? I INVITE YOU TO TRY A DIFFERENT GATHERING PLACE. A PLACE WITHOUT CASSEROLES OR PRESENTS. WHERE SHOES GET A LITTLE MUDDY AND NOSES MIGHT GET A LITTLE SUNBURNED. WHERE YOU PASS THE SUNSCREEN AND SHARE THE BUG SPRAY. AND WHERE YOU ALL GO HOME WITH NEW STORIES TO TELL. IT'S TIME TO TAKE THE FAMILY GATHERING OUTDOORS IN SOUTHERN INDIANA.

Now, if you're immediately thinking only campers and tents you shouldn't. This dad's not really a camper at heart. There are many fun ways a family can set up camp away from home.

Patoka Lake

Starting on Memorial Day, our six-year-old ceremoniously marked off the days until our trip to Patoka Lake using a blue marker (the color of lakes) on the kitchen calendar. June and July filled with large eager Xs before the day we looked forward to all summer finally arrived. In two minivans we made our way south toward the lake and the floating cabins we'd read about. Since it was only about a two-hour drive from Indianapolis, we took the scenic route: a winding two-lane highway at the northern edge of the Hoosier National Forest. The route skirted Bedford, dividing wooded hillsides and deep ravines. We couldn't pass what our son called the "castle" in West Baden without making a quick stop to see the inside of the beautifully restored West Baden Springs Hotel. This 20-minute side trip excited everyone about a return trip to stay in this amazing place.

About 30 minutes down the road we arrived at Patoka Lake, located on the western edge of the Hoosier National Forest and about 20 miles south of French Lick. And as the name implies, the floating cabin we'd share the next two nights was literally on the water at the edge of the lake. It had three bedrooms, a bath and an open area with sofas, dining table and kitchen. Call it a cozy but comfortable, air-conditioned, engine-less houseboat. It rocked occasionally from a wake making its way to shore. The Adirondack chairs on the dock just outside our door were perfect for watching boats and talking as evening settled in over the lake. Ah, the simple life.

The next morning, we left the dock in our rented pontoon from Patoka Lake Marina (they also rent houseboats and fishing boats). For the next eight or so hours we were one big family on an adventure – Patoka Lake was ours. Under a summer sky painted a brilliant blue, the water sparkled in the morning sun as we made our way across the lake. The anticipation was almost more than the five kids on board could bear. (And honestly, we parents, too.) We'd gone about a half mile when we declared we'd found our first spot to swim and dropped anchor. One by one via water slide or cannonball, the kids plunged off the top of our pontoon and emerged from the water with faces beaming. Yep, this would be a great day.

The lake is much larger than we realized. In fact, Patoka Lake is Indiana's second-largest lake offering more than 8,800 acres of clean, open water and quiet coves for recreation and fishing. Families that come to fish find it's filled with largemouth bass, monster catfish (my wife can't think about this while she's swimming), crappie, carp, blue gill and rockfish just waiting to test your patience and introduce a new generation to fishing stories.

Something you can't help but notice is the shorelines are filled with trees, not houses. They're not allowed. Houseboats dotting some of the quiet coves are as close as it comes. In fact, the Hoosier Hills Marina and the Patoka Lake Marina, located at opposite ends of the lake, are the only visible signs of civilization from the water.

While we stayed on the lake this time, there are campsites and rentable cabins nearby. Patoka Lake offers 10 launch ramps. In Newton-Stewart State Recreation Area, we found modern camping, a public beach and nature trails to explore.

We decided if Twin Swamps were an amusement park ride, the sign at the start would read:

YOU WILL GET MUDDY ON THIS RIDE.

Twin Swamps Nature Preserve, Posey County.

The Hoosier National Forest

We left Patoka Lake the next day to explore more of The Hoosier National Forest. Hemlock Cliffs, a tranquil destination for hikers, is a short drive from Patoka Lake and about two miles north of Interstate 64 and west of SR 37. The canyon shape, sandstone rock formations and seasonal waterfalls keep the climate cool and offer a break to those sunny cheeks gained from time on the water. The one-mile loop into the canyon takes about two hours when you're herding three boys at a leisurely pace.

It's a great place to let imaginations soar while talking about early settlers and how they may have used the overhangs and cliffs as shelter. And this is just one of the points of interest.

The Hoosier National Forest is set for adventure within its 200,000 acres. There are about 266 miles of trails, with a little over 200 miles designated for horseback riding and about 175 miles for biking. Not to mention the wide range of camping areas that draw families here year after year. And if you're a birdwatcher, your binoculars will get a workout spotting warblers, vireos, flycatchers and, of course, lots of turkey vultures.

Old Capital Golf Club

Now if your family is more into hikes of a different sort, you might prefer heading southeast to Indiana's charming first capital city, Corydon, home to the Old Capital Golf Club. There's a new three-hole par 3 loop near the lake that's great for anyone wanting to work on his or her game. The 18-hole, par 72 course offers many elevation changes and is a very popular course in this part of the state. I hear from players who can hit a ball much better than I that they enjoy the variety of shots it takes to play the course successfully. But maybe that's with the exception of Hole 7: Devil's Mound. I think the name sums it up. It has a reputation for being the most-cursed hole on the course. We were glad we had a video camera handy.

My cousin...not so much.

Twin Swamps Nature Preserve

One of Indiana's most unique outdoor experiences is the Twin Swamps Nature Preserve in the southwestern tip of Indiana about 60 minutes south of New Harmony. Way down in the "toe" of the state near where the Ohio and Wabash rivers come together.

Not long after passing the little green map box at the start of the trail you realize this hike is going to be a little different. We decided if Twin Swamps were an amusement park ride the sign at the start would read: YOU WILL GET MUDDY ON THIS RIDE. In fact, parts of the trail are almost always muddy so you'll want to wear waterproof boots and probably long pants (and some mosquito repellent). With one of the swamps dominated by bald cypress trees and the other by overcup oak trees, each trail offers fascinating experiences. On both trails you're likely to spot small reptiles, frogs, toads and turtles along the way.

We set out toward the cypress swamp. The trail ends at a boardwalk that leads you another 300 feet through the cypress trees to an observation deck in the heart of the swamp. The unusual "knees" of the bald cypress, sent up out of the dark water by the roots of the trees, are distinctive and can form some pretty odd shapes. We read about a pair of knees one hiker calls "the king and queen." See if you can spot them. The boardwalk is a very cool feature, and after the muddy hike it provides a welcome resting spot. As a chorus of birds provided background music, we couldn't imagine a more tranquil setting.

The overcup oak swamp doesn't have a boardwalk, but it is definitely worth seeing, too. In August you might even spot exotic spiderlilies blooming along the edge of the oak swamp as we did. Both swamps are rich in plant life and the flowers are ever changing throughout the year. Bring the family here, and you'll leave talking about one wonderfully memorable, muddy adventure.

Now, it's your turn. Imagine your family, walking sticks in hand, leaving a trail of laughter through the hills of Southern Indiana. Aunt Betty can still bring her famous pie.

ARTS AND CULTURE Art comes to life

See artists at work as the gaffers at Kokomo Opalescent Glass hand-ladle, roll and mouth-blow glass for the oldest manufacturer of opalescent and stained glass in the world. The 12-pot furnace burns at 2500°F! Enjoy an intimate dinner cabaret in the recently restored Art Deco lobby of The New Huntington Theatre. New York-based singers perform original shows written and produced by the theater's co-owners. Stroll through the fascinating collection of American pieces in the newly renovated and expanded Fort Wayne Museum of Art. Collection includes works by the likes of noted painters Janet Fish and George Inness and sculptor George Rickey.

LOCALLY GROWN

Fun is always in season

The owners of Orchard Hill Farms (Kendallville) love to talk apples! See their new New Zealand sizing machine – the only one of its kind in Indiana – and take home a bag of apples. Follow the slate-patterned sidewalks in Historic Farmland USA to charming shops and eateries. Learn town history at the Farmland Cultural Center and sample locally produced food, arts and entertainment the second Friday of every month. Get in the spirit of things at Jacobs' Family Orchard (New Castle), where you can be spooked in the haunted house, pick pumpkins, climb the straw pyramid and savor their apple-cinnamon doughnuts. They also offer seasonal produce starting in May.

Aim for exercise

You'd expect to swim and boat at the 900-acre J. Edward Roush Lake (Huntington), but you can also try your hand at archery, shooting, radio-control flying and primitive camping. Stay and play at Walnut Creek and Club Run Golf Complex (Marion), given a Golf Digest 4 Star Rating. Golfers relish the opportunity to play 36 holes on one site. Strength is required for the long holes of Walnut Creek and shot-making ability needed for the doglegs and layups of Club Run. Bike, walk or roll (on inline skates) along the 2.4-mile River Bluff Trail (Logansport). This downtown trail follows the Eel River, connects to a labyrinth and provides canoe launch access.

GIRLFRIEND GETAWAYS

What inspires you?

Garner ideas as you leisurely stroll through the meadow and past the waterfall in Charley Creek Gardens (Wabash). A maze and labyrinth provide moments of meditation. Find out what inspired one of Indiana's most widely read authors at the Gene Stratton-Porter State Historic Site (Rome City). Stratton-Porter's Cabin at Wildflower Woods provided a rich source of material for her nature books and romance novels. Prepare to be charmed in Centerville, the hub of Indiana's Antique Alley. Find treasures among millions of items in Webb's Antique Mall – Indiana's largest – then stay in the charming 1823 Federal style Lantz House Inn. If you're a Vera Bradley fan, don't miss the biggest sale of the year – the annual four-day Vera Bradley Outlet Sale (Fort Wayne).

FAMILY FUN Nature, noses and noise

Just minutes from downtown Anderson, learn why the ancient Adena-Hopewell people built 10 unique earthworks in what's now known as Mounds State Park (Anderson). While here enjoy other outdoor activities such as bird-watching, camping, hiking, fishing and swimming. Get nose to nose with the king of beasts in the new African Journey at Fort Wayne Children's Zoo (don't worry, there is glass between you!). Ride the Sky Safari for a bird's-eye view, feed the giraffes and visit the wildebeests. Check out the largest collection of aero modeling history at the National Model Aviation Museum (Muncie). Join hobbyists from around the world who come to the 1,000-acre center for extreme flight competitions, helicopter championships and war aircraft events.

ARTS AND CULTURE Making "then" relevant "now"

Feel like you're walking through a Norman Rockwell painting in the Carmel Arts & Design District as you pass life-size statues by noted realist J. Seward Johnson, Jr. Brick sidewalks lead to more than 100 art galleries, showrooms and specialty shops. October brings the Riley Festival (Greenfield), honoring Hoosier poet James Whitcomb Riley for over 40 years. Themed each year with a Riley poem, it features two parades and fine art, photography and quilt shows. There's plenty to do in the six Indy Cultural Districts. Enjoy jazz, comedy or the Walker Film Series as you celebrate Indianapolis' rich African-American heritage on Indiana Avenue. The Wholesale District is alive with performances at Indiana Repertory Theatre and Conseco Fieldhouse. Get a new perspective on Lincoln in 2010 at the Indiana State Museum (Indianapolis). Traveling exhibits include artifacts, images and, at certain times, signed copies of the Emancipation Proclamation and 13th Amendment.

Fresh from the farm

The owner of Mallow Run Winery (Bargersville) turned the hayloft of the barn his great-great-great grandfather built into a wine-tasting room. Try award-winning wines after touring the vineyard where eight varieties are grown. From July to January there's always something fresh to buy at Beasley's Orchard & Gardens (Danville). Pick pumpkins in October during Heartland Apple Festival and select seasonal favorites in the market housed in a peg-and-beam barn built just after the Civil War. Hunter's Honey Farm (Martinsville) is a family tradition dating to 1910. These third-generation beekeepers use no chemicals in their hives, honey or products. Schedule a tour to learn about beekeeping and candle making – free tastings!

DESTINATION RESTAURANTS AND LODGING Feeding the soul

St. Elmo Steak House, Indianapolis

Staying at the luxurious Conrad Indianapolis puts you at the center of it all, located near Circle Centre mall, the Indiana Convention Center and Monument Circle. Rejuvenate at the hotel's Spa Chakra, enjoy dinner at The Capital Grille or sample something new in Tastings wine bar. Be part of history when you eat at Indianapolis' oldest steakhouse, St. Elmo Steak House. Or try its popular sister restaurant, Harry & Izzy's, which honors St. Elmo's quintessential "odd couple" business partners, Harry Roth and Izzy Rosen. Have lunch with friends or join the community table at Serenity Tea (Zionsville). Antiques, period lighting and sensational food await guests in this 1868 restored home or outdoor garden.

Crack, roar, ahhhhh

Find out why Sports Illustrated calls Victory Field (Indianapolis), home of the Indianapolis Indians, the best Minor League ballpark in America. Enjoy Friday night fireworks from an outfield seat hugging the foul line or the outfield lawn. If the roar of the oval track or drag strip is more your thing, get to O'Reilly Raceway Park at Indianapolis, home of two NASCAR races and the world's largest drag race, where every ticket is a pit pass. Or come on Tuesdays to race your own street-legal car. Bike, run or push a stroller on the Monon Trail (Indianapolis), awarded the Rails to Trails Hall of Fame Award in 2009. There are eateries, shops and outdoor art along the way.

FAMILY FUN Transport your way to fun

Soar 350 feet above Conner Prairie Interactive History Park (Fishers) in the tethered, helium-filled 1859 Balloon Voyage. Race a balloon against other transportation of the day in the recreated Lafayette streetscape. Play tag with dolphins or marvel at the colorful seahorses in the Oceans exhibit at the Indianapolis Zoo. As you stroll the world-class zoo you'll meet animals from the African jungles to countryside farms all in downtown Indy. Travel around the world in The Children's Museum of Indianapolis' newest permanent exhibit, "Take Me There," featuring Egypt. Wear costumes and be in a parade as part of the sebou, a community baby celebration.

Write your own history

Take home traditional stoneware bowls, pitchers and plates from Clay City Pottery. These fifth- and sixth-generation potters work the clay and fire it much the same way their ancestors did more than 100 years ago. The Clay City Pottery Festival in June offers pottery-themed activities and other events like a craft show, antique cars and quilt show. Browse the Covington antique shops, including House with the Lions Antiques on the square, known since 1973 for fine furniture, china and primitives. The Covington Antique Company, housed in an 1868 dairy barn, features pottery, linens, lighting, jewelry and items from primitives to '70s collectibles. Eat, shop and enjoy the Parke County Covered Bridge Festival™ in October, offering 10 days of celebration fun. Driving routes to the nine participating communities take you past all 31 renowned covered bridges, the largest concentration of covered bridges in Indiana.

ARTS AND CULTURE How art inspires life

General Lew Wallace spent much of seven years under a beech tree on the grounds of his study researching and writing what came to be the best-selling novel of the 19th century, Ben-Hur. Now a National Historic Landmark, the General Lew Wallace Study & Museum (Crawfordsville) contains items from his life as an author, soldier, statesman and inventor. Take in a show at the Purdue University Hall of Music (West Lafayette). Eight musical organizations present over 200 performances ranging from Broadway musicals and children's theater to jazz and comedy. Browse permanent collections and traveling exhibits in the Art Deco, three-story Swope Art Museum (Terre Haute). Its feature collection is 19th and 20th century American art, containing paintings and sculptures from the likes of Thomas Hart Benton, Grant Wood, Andy Warhol and Edward Hopper.

Be dazzled by color as you walk among the thousands of blooms at Hilltop Orchids (Cloverdale). Explore the large, full-service laboratory that creates new, award-winning hybrids annually. Find your way to fun in the corn and hay bale mazes at Hog Wallow Farm (Dana) during Pumpkin Harvest in September and October. Don't forget to visit the pumpkin patch. A combination of old-fashioned and modern techniques creates some of the best maple syrup at Harris Sugar Bush Camp (Greencastle). From January to March sap is tapped and transferred from sugar and black maple trees to collection tanks. A huge evaporator converts 2,000 gallons of sap into syrup each day – with no preservatives. See the process and taste the finished product.

OUTDOOR RECREATION

From the earth to the skies

Get a taste of history aboard The Delphi, the colorful 40-passenger boat at Wabash and Erie Canal Park (Delphi). This 54-foot 3/4-scale canal boat launched in 2009 offers a mile-long, narrated tour on the historical canal. Visit Camp Cullom and Prairie Grass Observatory (Frankfort) on a clear evening to view the stars through their 10-foot-tall telescope. The Indiana Family Star Party held each summer offers a great hands-on, build-your-own telescope experience. Find out why Shades State Park (Waveland) is a favorite among hikers (15 miles of trails from easy to rugged) and canoeists alike. Launch your own canoe on Sugar Creek or rent one from a nearby livery. Observe the 200th anniversary of the 1811 battle led by General William Henry Harrison against Tecumseh's Native American confederation at Tippecanoe Battlefield Park (Battle Ground).

DESTINATION RESTAURANTS AND LODGING

Settling in for the night

Sneak away for a romantic weekend at Cabins & Candlelight (Colfax), featuring two luxury log cabins nestled among 30 beautiful wooded acres. Relax under the high-pitched cathedral ceiling listening to music in front of the 15-foot stone fireplace or in the large whirlpool tub. Enjoy "upscale comfort food" like the signature strawberry pizza at Almost Home Restaurant (Greencastle). From local, seasonal ingredients to a historic building on the square, it's the perfect setting for any occasion. While traveling in Ireland, the O'Bryan family hand-picked furniture and décor to recreate a piece of home at the 9 Irish Brothers Traditional Irish Pub (West Lafayette and Lafayette). Enjoy live music, free Irish dancing lessons and traditional fare like Irish Whiskey Pepper Steak and Shepherd's Pie.

Take the challenge

Watch out for the green on hole #4 at Otter Creek Golf Course (Columbus), with Otter Creek on the right and pond on the left. This 27-hole public course has been a top-25 course since it was built in 1964. Famed designer Robert Trent Jones designed the original 18 holes and son Rees did the additional nine. See the falls from above or hike into the canyon for great views in Clifty Falls State Park (Madison). Trail #7 provides the best view of Big Clifty Falls; for more adventurous hikers, try trails #1 and #2 into Clifty Canyon. Park amenities include nature center, tennis courts, swimming pool, campground and Clifty Inn. Whoop it up at Dagaz Acres Zipline Adventures (Rising Sun). Soar high above the tree line – more than 100 feet above the forest floor – while securely fastened in a zipline harness.

What word best describes southern Indiana? “Rolling.”
From beautiful rolling hills to exhilarating roller coasters, it's full of wonders.

Carnegie Center for Art & History, New Albany; Squire Boone Caverns, Mauckport; The Leavenworth Inn & Restaurant

Le Merigot, Evansville

DESTINATION RESTAURANTS AND LODGING

Make - or escape - some noise

Roll out of imported bed linens into the plush robe and slippers provided in your elegant room at Le Merigot (Evansville), a luxury waterfront boutique hotel in The District at Casino Aztar. Enjoy cocktails, modern art and the stunning ambience of Blush, the hotel's sleek lounge. For a quiet night under the stars, try A Big Log Cabin in the Clouds (French Lick). This two-story historic log cabin, built in 1863, offers modern conveniences and sits on 120 acres of woodland habitat on the Indiana Uplands Wine Trail. Build a fire in the outdoor fire ring made of ancient sandstone rocks or enjoy the outdoor hot tub. Retreat to Saint Meinrad Archabbey's Guest House, a 31-room modern convention facility that includes a chapel and dining room. Take a guided tour led by one of the Benedictine monks.

ARTS AND CULTURE

Seeing is understanding

What drew the likes of Al Capone and Bing Crosby to southern Indiana? Find out during the French Lick and West Baden Springs Landmark Tours. Knowledgeable guides tell fascinating histories of these unique hotels, while pointing out stunning architecture, gardens elements and the mineral springs. Enjoy a theatrical or music performance at the Jasper Arts Center. The center also includes the Krempf Gallery, where the exhibit changes out 12 times a year. At the Carnegie Center For Art & History (New Albany), experience the compelling local story of the Underground Railroad and the Yenawine Dioramas, hand-whittled mechanical miniatures depicting historical small-town life. The Center's annual juried contemporary art quilts exhibit draws in submissions from across the country.

Wonders of the hills

The owners of Winzerwald Winery (Bristow) celebrate their German and Swiss heritage by producing award-winning wines. Lore has it that one type of grape they use was brought to America by their ancestors. Enjoy their “Noodles and Notes” dinner concerts featuring pasta, wine and music. See the handiwork of nationally known Indiana Artisan Jason Emmons at Bear Hollow Wood Carvers (French Lick). Utilizing his chainsaw skills, he creates furniture and decorative statues from harvested logs. Celebrate fall harvest at Montgomery Farms (Underwood), where their 200-acre farm is transformed into a playground for all ages. Wind through an 11-acre corn and forest maze – haunted nightly – then try out the Cob Cannons and take the hayride to pick pumpkins.

GIRLFRIEND GETAWAYS

Turn on the charm

There's more than wine at Blue Heron Vineyards (Rocky Point), including the Farm House Bed and Breakfast overlooking the Ohio River and a wine shop with a variety of gifts like carved walking sticks, local art and Blue Heron steak sauce. Spend a day browsing the Huntingburg's antique and specialty shops – gems like Touch of Class furniture and home décor, Greentree antiques and jewelry and The Stocked Pot for kitchen supplies or a bite to eat. This charming Victorian downtown is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. At The Leavenworth Inn on the Ohio River, play tennis, follow the bike path, relax in the garden gazebo, savor freshly baked cookies each afternoon and enjoy the view from The Overlook Restaurant.

FAMILY FUN Natural and manmade fun galore

Get ready for a swashbuckling good time at Big Splash Adventure Indoor Water Park & Resort (French Lick). This 40,000-square-foot pirate-themed park offers slides, pools, dumping buckets and even a quiet adult cove all under a canopy of glass. Rooms are family friendly, some furnished with bunk beds. Go down under – underground, that is – at Squire Boone Caverns (Mauckport). Explore the amazing cave structures formed by 1,000,000 gallons of water rushing through the caverns each day. Above ground, enjoy the working grist mill, candle-dipping, nature trail and gold-mining activities. Buckle up for the world's tallest water ride or a top-rated wooden roller coaster at Holiday World & Splashin' Safari (Santa Claus). Cool off in the water park, featuring the world's largest enclosed waterslide, and take in an exciting dive show or musical revue. And don't miss the chance to visit with Santa Claus!
